- There are no specific themes defined; however, we welcome macroeconomic theoretical and empirical research that aims to address the challenges confronting the Japanese economy.
- In the selection process, priority will be given to young researchers and graduate students when the quality of papers is deemed to be comparable.
- While full paper submission is preferred, a 10-page abstract is also acceptable. However, if the abstract is accepted, the full paper should be submitted to all of the program committee members and the discussants by Friday, November 10, 2023 (Japan time).
- Paper presentations are accepted in both English and Japanese. However, please note that the audience has the right to ask questions in Japanese. Please kindly understand this policy in advance. We will provide translations as necessary.

We will cover the travel and accommodation expenses for presenters, discussants, and session chairs. If overseas researchers prefer to present online, please inform us of your preference. We may also request online presentations from our end, and we appreciate your understanding in this regard.

We look forward to receiving numerous submissions.
